MIS HAY'S POEM CAUSES SURPRISE.

Washington Society Greatly Astonished at Literary Ability of Daughter of Secretary of State—"The Rise of Dawn" Voted a Classic.

Miss Helen Hay, daughter of the Secretary of State, has sprung into literary fame by the publication of her poem "The Rise of Dawn." The verses have a decided Hiawatha swing and show a great merit. Society is greatly surprised at the literary powers of Miss Hay.

The state and in a way she is that now. The neighboring cities will be visited and the union labor question agitated and it will not be long before all the many trades will be well represented in Fulton, Mayfield, Benton, Metropolis, Golconda, Smithland, Princeton and in fact all the nearby cities.

The local union meetings were not so well attended this week as heretofore as the election created much interest and the union business was dropped for a time.

The Chat will publish an interview with Mr. Sam Simon, the well known labor union official, shortly.

The news published in this column can be relied on as it is "straight" and comes from authoritative sources.

Paducah has come rapidly to the front in union circles in the course of the last several months. Recently several well known union men from Chicago and other northern cities paid a visit to this city and upon visiting the local unions showed much surprise in the city's rapid growth in this particular line. "We passed through this city two years ago," one remarked, "and found not more than two unions here and now nearly every trade is represented. This is certainly the best town of its size in the country for labor union work."

There has been but one strike in Paducah so far and in this strike the union men were victorious, so their strength here can not be underestimated.

The ship carpenters held their regular meeting Wednesday night at Barkdale's hall and elected officers. The following is a list of the officers elected: President, Charles Haymas; vice president, Geo. Simpson; treasurer, F. M. Duna; financial secretary, J. H. Simpson; recording secretary, J. H. Simpson; guide, Tom Garvey; J. H. Simpson; J. H. Simpson.

The meeting was one of the most successful ever held and the membership has increased greatly.

"You've been in a fight," said his mother, reprovingly. "Oh, not much of a one," answered the boy. "Did you count 100, as I told you, when you felt your angry passions rising?" "Oh, sure," returned the boy. "I counted 100 all right, but I knocked the other boy down first. It's the only safe way."—Chicago Post.

A WOMAN'S WAYS.

She will laugh while the tears still dim the eyes.

She will sing a song to cover the sighs.

She will fight for the mastery over pain.

Full many an untold battle again; Then over a mouse will faint away.

But that is only a woman's way.

She will take her place in the battle of life.

And bear uncomplainingly the brunt of the strife.

Her strength and energy ready to share.

And always trying a smile to wear; But in dispute the last word she'll say.

For that is just a woman's way.

She rocks the cradle of life's greatest men;

She has ruled the world since the world began;

She can reach a decision and act on the same.

While a man spends the time in arguments lame.

But when she goes shopping she takes one day.

For that is just a woman's way.
